TRUS FRUIT SECTION

Describes Enchanting Scenes on a Trip upon the St. Lucie River.—Capable of a Teeming Population.

Take in the beauties of the St. Lucie river, let us get into a "dug out" of sight of the railroad and all other things, at Stuart, paddling our 25 miles or so northward up this light steam, so weirdly enchanting, soon becomes oblivious of the busy life left behind. It requires no stretch of imagination to picture the haunts of Seminoles, and how they paddled their light canoes on the placid waters of the river. Their descendants may still be seen in the more modern skiff as they paddle for Stuart to trade. But we prefer to paddle for our trip as permitting a view ahead than when bending the oar.

Here and anon there are visitors of "forests primeval" where the state-trees seem sentinels guarding the memories of the buried past and on us modern intruders. Popping ashore to take in the surroundings more fully one yields to the temptation to recline on a grassy knoll in nature's bower and drink in the sights of repose in balmy air by the flowing waters and waving palms, there is the suggestion, "Where you now the Indian warrior wooed his dusky girl?"

While such reflections are natural while whiling away time on the marvelous beautiful St. Lucie, be the tourist titler, yet to the practical homemaker it also speaks in other strains: of the possibilities of sugar cane, citrus groves, pine—of the growing trees but symmetrical plants graceful curves at your feet yielding delicious fruit, for luxury and health—rise every kind of vegetable that is. The stranger would naturally question: Why is this land not so? and that too within 3 or 4 miles of the F. E. C. Ry parallel with this?

White City is a settlement of small extent nearly three miles north and two miles east and west of the railroad station. A little land is needed for a living, greatly indebted to richness of soil its success, yet hardly less so to the perseverance of its early settlers under discouraging conditions in the nineties. When Mr. Pio, at the instigation of the F. E. C. Ry. Land department, looked up and down the East Coast for the best place to locate a colony, he found this spot after some months of search, two successive dry years had watered out of the calculations; so the settlers broke ground in the lowest rich soil free of trees and palmetto, nothing grew amazingly—but soon autumn rainfalls and flood of 1894 ruined the crops. The waters subsided and was again planted for the winter. Then came the unexpected freeze of January, 1895, only vegetables but the fruit of the entire coast were destroyed. The older bearing plants also. There is an orange grove on Ten Mile creek, a few miles north of White City, and a tree was hurt nor the fruit injured; same with a grove at Waveland a few miles south of Jensen—other trees on Indian River, not known to the settlers at that time.

A fact set some of the truckers of White City to start orange raising, but with poor success. They had experience and made mistakes, there was one great cause of failure: country needed drainage. The Co. (Flagler's) then in charge of farming interests had two large tracts on the east side of the St. Lucie river. A few smaller ones on the west side. Individual enterprise in the system has been going on since and will soon be made permanent. Now one large ditch is needed on the east side, which will soon be done by the R. R. Co. Tho, as it is, several successes have been made in the fruit culture as a result of better drainage etc. The same holds good also in the culture of pines until there can be no doubt of these industries being established on a firm basis.

Now-and-then. The route up the St. Lucie river to introduce the attention of investors to this important valley, which is beginning to be developed and is to be a garden spot for a teeming population—but for the homeseeker in communication with D. E. Austin of Fort Pierce, Fla., the R. R. Company's agent for the sale of its lands in and about White City—and he is very conspicuous in his descriptions.

Now-AND-THEN.

Road Preparing for Heavy Travel. Officials of the Florida East Coast railway are busy now getting everything in shape for the enormous tourist traffic which will set in immediately after the holidays. Extra train crews are being drilled and made familiar with the road; nearly all of the rolling stock has been in the repair shops, overhauled and turned out again practically new; large orders for new cars are being filled—in fact, one consignment will consist of ten regular coaches, two sleepers and six express cars. This season the Florida East Coast Railway will be much better equipped than ever before to handle the enormous travel with safety and dispatch, and rates among the best of the country for equipment and efficiency.

The Show is Coming.

The Sun Brothers' Mammoth New Railroad Shows, Museum of Wonders, Trained Animal Exposition, which is billed to exhibit at Fort Pierce, Saturday, December 23, is being received this season by thousands of delighted spectators and unqualifiedly endorsed by every newspaper and patronized alike by the brains, wealthy, fashion, and masses. Don't miss the opportunity of attending the largest and best one ring show extant. Grand free street parade at 12 o'clock noon day of show. Two performances daily, rain or shine, 2 and 8 p. m. Doors open one hour earlier.

DRAINAGE CANAL TO BE IMPROVED

While the drainage canal at Fort Pierce has not accomplished all that was predicted for it, it has shown by the good it has done that much can be accomplished by further work in this direction either by deepening and widening the present canal, or by providing others.

Of the two methods above mentioned the first is believed to be the most practical and will undoubtedly be the one decided upon by the canal company should they make further expenditures in canal work.

The wisdom of these drainage schemes is amply shown now. Last winter the rainfall was scant compared with this year and the skeptical ones, always ready to take a pessimistic view of everything, could only say, "wait until the heavy rains come; then you'll see how much your old ditch will do toward carrying off the torrents."

Well, the rains have come, and the wisdom of the course has been shown. True, the canal has not carried off all that was predicted; ground that was "wet" last year is several inches under water at present—but how much water would be on the same ground today if the "ditch" and its laterals had not been dug?

It is an undeniable fact that the country directly adjacent to the canal could be thoroughly drained by deepening the "ditch," and that suitable laterals would relieve the section adjacent.

It's up to the people directly affected by these works to get the full advantage of them, and undoubtedly they will do so. H. H. Floyd, the St. Augustine representative of the canal company, was in town last week in reference to the matter, and it will soon be known what course the company has decided upon.

Old Indian River Steamboat.

The steamer, St. Lucie, Capt. Stephen Bravo, commanding, and which was recently bought by the F. E. C. Railway company along with a number of other steamboats for use in the construction of the extension of the said road in the keys, arrived in Miami from Tampa recently where she has been for the last several years. The St. Lucie is a large double stacked stern-wheeler and has a great carrying capacity as well as large passenger accommodations. Several years ago, previous to the advent of the F. E. C. Railway, the St. Lucie with the St. Augustine, St. Sebastian, Bicyane, Progress and other steamers plied as a regular line between Titusville and Jupiter and enjoyed a splendid patronage, but the railroad put the line out of business and the better steamers were sold.

Left Out the Umpire.

An exchange, wishing to show the antiquity of the game of games, baseball, submits this composition from a Young American: The devil was the first coacher; Eve stole first; Adam stole second. When Isaac met Rebekah at the well she was walking with the pitcher. Sampson struck out a good many when he met the Philistines. Moses made his first run when he slew the Egyptian. Cain made a base hit when he killed Abel. The Prodigal Son made a home run, David was a long distance thrower and Moses shut the Egyptians out at the Red sea.

BAND BENEFIT
FINE SUCCESS

Entertainment Saturday Evening
Netted $55.10.

SPLENDID PROGRAMME

Home Talent the Equal or Superior of Professionals Who Travel Through the Small Towns of Florida.

The entertainment last Friday evening for the benefit of the Fort Pierce band was a very fair success, although on account of the threatening weather the attendance was somewhat limited, the performances were fully appreciated by the audience.

Fort Pierce is to be congratulated on its amateur talent which in many cases is equal to professional. This was demonstrated Friday evening. Every number on the program was excellent and some were really remarkable.

An overture by band opened the performance, after which was a monologue by R. L. Goodwin. Mr. Goodwin was costumed as the traditional clown, and acted the part to perfection.

"The Sylphide," a piano solo, was rendered by Mrs. W. E. Tylander and enthusiastically applauded. A recitation by Mrs. C. T. McCarty "Jim Bludso" was heartily appreciated. A character sketch by P. C. Eldred, received merited applause. Songs by Mrs. D. T. McCarty were beautifully rendered and received the closest attention.

Messrs. George T. Backus and Charles Lord were on the program for two or three of their mirth provoking specialties. After a song and a scene in which the incident of a hayseed's being separated from a goodsized wad by a gold brick man was touchingly portrayed, Mr. Backus appeared on the stage in female costume, the affectionate sweetheart of Mr. Lord. The song by the too and the scene in which the gentle maiden took her lover under one arm and carried him bodily off the stage, was killing.

The orchestra composed of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tylander, F. A. Roylance, Casper Mims, Emerson Farnsworth and Harney Williams cannot be too warmly commended for their excellent work. A number of selections were rendered and the remark was heard on every side that no better music could be supplied by professionals. Mr. Williams, an expert snare drummer, was a notable addition to their number and his performance added much to the effect.

After the close of the entertainment the floor was cleared and dancing indulged in until a late hour, the band supplying the music.

Throughout the evening refreshments were served in the dining room and were enjoyed by many. The net proceeds of the entertainment were $55.10 of which $50 was turned over to the band, which settled their entire indebtedness and leaves them a balance of $10.

FOUL MURDER
NEAR MIAMI

Mrs. Suggs Killed by an Unknown
Assassin Last Monday.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS

Sheriff's Posse Scouring County in Search of Murderer.—Case Equals the Davis Murder Mystery.

With her head crushed and terribly mutilated; finger marks on the throat and chest, and conditions bearing evidence of criminal assault, the lifeless form of Mrs. Dora Suggs, a well known and respected lady, residing west of Coconut Grove, was found in the woods near the Obchain place at a late hour Monday night by the sheriff's posse and others searching for the same.

Though there are no body evidences of outrage upon the person, other conditions connected with the horrible crime prove almost conclusively that the crime was committed, and that it was the intent of the assassin, when he made the assault which added another link or chapter to the criminology of Dade county.

Mrs. Suggs was alone at the time she was attacked and met her death and no one but her Maker and the cowardly fiend know what transpired, though the ground around and about where the tragedy was enacted furnishes proof that the woman fought desperately, first for her virtue and then for her life, but to no avail in either instance.

Mrs. Suggs, it appears, had been in Miami trading and shopping. She drove a mule and light wagon and started home late in the afternoon. She was accompanied as far as Coconut Grove by her nephew, W. Perry, and leaving him at his home proceeded on towards her place a few miles west of the grove. Later in the evening the mule and wagon reached the Suggs home, but Mrs. Suggs was not to be seen. Suspicion was at once aroused and the anxious husband started out to search for her. Search parties were organized and about 10:30 o'clock the party under the direction of Deputy Sheriff Gore found the lifeless body of the woman lying on the ground a short distance from the abandoned Obchain place.

It was a groomsome and heartrending sight. The body lay near a banana tree, partly nude, and the remaining articles of clothing were disarranged on the corpse. Her hair was down and matted with blood, while the head only too plainly showed that life had been beaten out with some heavy instrument. The left side of the forehead was crushed in and parts of broken bone protruded through the mangled and torn flesh. The chin was also crushed and both of the lower jaws broken. The neck bore unmistakable signs that deceased had been choked.

An entire mystery so far surrounds the murder, though various rumors and opinions are heard. Some are to the effect that the murderer of Mrs. Suggs, if captured, will prove the assassin of C. E. Davis and daughter, horribly murdered early last summer. Another is that the crime was committed by one or more of the idle laborers now in the now in the city; another that it was a negro, etc.

The deceased woman was 29 years of age and besides her afflicted husband, leaves two sons, about 12 and 9 years, respectively. She was a sister of Messrs. C. J. and Fate Perry and a most estimable woman.

M. Sample, Martha; J. H. Wynn, chaplain. W. C. Rawlinson, warder; L. S. S. Farnsworth, sentry.

The above officers were installed at a meeting held last evening.

The dredge Florida passed through Fort Pierce yesterday on her way to Gilberts bar. She is going to work on a shoal between St. Lucie river and Jupiter.
